Prof. Mohnish has been working on the crisscross of Epistemology and Ontology. Epistemology is the philosophy of Knowledge and Ontology is the philosophy of Existence. He has been dealing with Knowledge in its different identifications and formulations on this crisscross such as Creativity (i.e., Generation of new Knowledge), Invention (i.e., Implementation of new Knowledge), Innovation (i.e., Commercialization of New Knowledge), Knowledge Management (Management of Knowledge), Knowledge Discovery through Data (KDD) and Intellectual Property Rights (IPRs) (i.e, IPRs are those Knowledge on which Society gives Property Rights). His published research papers focus on the enabling and disabling factors of Knowledge and its above identifications and formulations.

In his Ph.D. thesis entitled "Knowledge Management: A Study of Selected Organizations", he researched about Management of Knowledge from the Department of Commerce, Delhi School of Economics. He is working on the Generation of new Knowledge and Commercialization of New Knowledge in a Research Project on the Indian Perspective on Creativity and Innovation. He had a specialization in Intellectual Property Rights as part of his law degree from the Faculty of Law, University of Delhi. He had already submitted one Research Project entitled "Development of Entrepreneurial venture of DU (Daily Use) Bottles: A Study of tech- economic and marketing feasibility" about the Implementation of new Knowledge (i.e., Invention) and transform it into an Entrepreneurial Venture.
